Welcome

Miss Maggie Welcomes you! (On the Cover)

Greetings from Maggie Valley! My name is Miss Maggie. I portray Maggie Mae Setzer for whom the town of Maggie Valley is named (see story on page 45). As the town's ambassador, I want to personally and cordially welcome you to Maggie Valley!

I encourage you to use this guide to plan the most amazing visit to a most amazing town. A town located in the heart of the gorgeous Smoky Mountains, we are adjacent to the Great Smoky Mountain National Park where outdoor adventures and exploring awaits your discovery. After taking some time to explore the GSMNP, take a drive along the Blue Ridge Parkway, which is also adjacent to Maggie Valley, and offers gorgeous views and holds opportunities for hikes, picnics and some of the most beautiful sunsets ever to behold. Maggie Valley is home to skiing, golf, fishing, hiking, waterfalls, snow tubing, wildlife (including our majestic Elk), hand-made mountain crafts, bluegrass music and clogging and so much more – your adventures await right here.

And when you are ready to slow down a bit, Maggie Valley has some of the most amazing restaurants, shops, family activities, parks, an amazing playground for the littles, Dale's Wheels Through Time Museum and lodging accommodations to suit every need. The Maggie valley Festival Grounds hosts crafts shows, concerts, car shows, motorcycle rallies, and an amazing Fourth of July fireworks show and more. Maggie Valley's central location means a quick and easy drive to Waynesville, Asheville, Cherokee and even Gatlinburg.

Maggie Valley is awaiting your first or a return discovery. I sincerely hope you'll come find all that makes Maggie Valley the special quaint and quiet town within the Smoky Mountains. And when you are here, look for me, too! You can often find me out and about welcoming visitors and visiting with our locals and business owners. While out exploring the area I am ready to share in a photo, a hug and a conversation. You can also follow me on my "Miss Maggie" Facebook page or on InstaGram: @missmaggie_828.

More information on Maggie Valley can be found by visiting www.maggievalley.org

Nestled in Nature's Glory

MAGGIE VALLEY, situated in North Carolina's stunning Smoky Mountains, is known for its unrivaled location and friendly, small town character. When you visit Maggie Valley, you're sure to discover the meaning of Southern hospitality wherever you go and whatever you do.

Maggie Valley boasts a rich mountain history and has everything you need, from unique shops and restaurants to great places to stay, no matter the season. If you like to get off the beaten path, the Great Smoky Mountains National Park and Blue Ridge Parkway are just a hop and a skip away. You can explore some of Southern Appalachia's best-kept secrets using Maggie Valley as your home base. Whether you spend the day paddling, golfing, riding a zip line, or hiking in the Smoky Mountains, you can come home to Maggie Valley for a restful evening or hit the town for a night of good food, music and dancing. When the weather starts cooling down, the action on the ski slopes begins to heat up on some of the southeast's best runs. You can stroll through history at Dale's Wheels Through Time, "The museum that runs," or explore Maggie's very own Quilt Trail as part of the Haywood County Quilt Trail. And don't forget Maggie is a perfect location for remote working and learning.

Maggie makes a splash

Waterfalls continue to be the most asked for feature of Maggie Valley.

There are some spectacular water features that are a close drive from the valley. Though you won't find any near the Valley floor, you won't have to go far. Here are some of our favorites:

SOCO FALLS - Soco Falls is located just past the Blue Ridge Parkway on the way to Cherokee. There is a small sign that indicates the parking area on the left of the road. The trail is short but steep that leads to an observation platform overlooking the unique double falls.

MINGO FALLS - Mingo Falls is on the Cherokee Indian Reservation (Qualla Boundary), just outside Great Smoky Mountains National Park. No special permits are required for access to the reservation. At 120 feet tall, the waterfall is one of the tallest and most spectacular in the southern Appalachians.

GRAVEYARD FIELDS WATERFALLS - Just off the Blue Ridge Parkway heading north, the hiking area includes two beautiful waterfalls, the multi-tiered second falls and the tall cascades of the upper falls. The trails meander through valley that was once used for grazing cattle around the turn of the last century. The hikes are moderate.

Mingo Falls,
Cherokee

SAFETY - As with any water feature, the trails, rocks and surrounding areas are often wet and slippery. Use caution whenever hiking around water.

The Blue Ridge Parkway is ideal for motorcyclists and driving tours, with spectacular views of the rolling mountains. Stop in and see the Wheels Through Time Museum - the museum that runs. Beside the incredible vistas along the Parkway, visit the Mountain Heritage Farmstead Museum at the beginning of the parkway, and many scenic waterfalls which are accessed by a short stroll. Maggie Valley is also a great central location for mountain biking and road biking – head over to the Blue Ridge Parkway for some of the best road riding in the South.

VALLEY FISHING

Maggie Valley is a state designated Heritage Trout Waters area.

The Mountain Heritage Trout Waters Program was established by the NC General Assembly in 2007 as a means to encourage trout fishing as a heritage tourism activity. Maggie Valley is designated as one of five Mountain Heritage Trout Cities in this pilot program.

Mountain Heritage Trout Waters provide quality fishing opportunities in the Maggie Valley area. The NC Wildlife Resources Commission, which sells the Mountain Heritage Trout Waters license, gives anglers two quick and easy ways to purchase a license: on-line: www.ncwildlife.org or by phone: 888-248-6834. The license is valid for a 3-day period and costs: $5 for residents and non-residents age 16 and older. The license is valid only for waters that are designated as Mountain Heritage Trout Waters.

Elk

Elk were once abundant throughout the United States, but by the mid-1800's, overhunting and habitat loss wiped out eastern elk herds. In 2001, the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation, the National Park Service and other partners joined together to restore wild elk to the Smoky Mountains in the Cataloochee Valley near Maggie Valley. The initial 52 elk that were released have grown to a herd of almost 200.

Viewing the Elk

Most elk are located in the Cataloochee Valley area in the southeastern section of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. While the best times to view elk are usually early morning and late evening, elk may also be active on cloudy summer days and before or after storms. As the elk have begun to migrate out of the park you can frequently see elk in and around Maggie Valley.

The Elk Seasons

Winter: Elk wear a two-layer coat during the colder months. Long guard hairs on the top repel water and a soft, wooly underfur keeps them warm. Elk may move from the high country to valleys to feed.

Spring: Most elk shed their antlers in March. The antlers, which are rich in calcium, are quickly eaten by rodents and other animals.

Summer: Most calves are born in early June. Male elk roll in mud wallows to keep cool and avoid insect pests.

Fall: The elk's fall breeding season is known as the rut (mid September through the end of October). The mating call of bulls is called a bugle and can be heard during the breeding season. Even if the elk are not present, people are not allowed to walk into the fields. During the rut, male elk make bugling calls to challenge other bulls and attract cows. Dominant bulls use the fields to gather and breed with harems of up to 20 cows. Bull elk actively defend their territory by charging and sparring with competitors using their antlers to intimidate and spar with other males. Encroaching too close may lead a bull to perceive you or your vehicle as a threat causing them to charge.

Safety

When elk are present, federal regulations require that you remain at least 150 feet away and at a distance that does not disturb them. Failure to do so can result in fines and/or arrests. Even if the elk are not present, people are not allowed to walk into the fields. During the rut, male elk make bugling calls to challenge other bulls and attract cows. Dominant bulls use the fields to gather and breed with harems of up to 20 cows. Bull elk actively defend their territory by charging and sparring with competitors using their antlers to intimidate and spar with other males. Encroaching too close may lead a bull to perceive you or your vehicle as a threat causing them to charge.

Directions to Cataloochee Valley

From Maggie Valley, take US 19 (Soco Road) east toward Waynesville. Turn left onto US 276 North (Jonathan Creek Road). Go about six miles and turn left onto Cove Creek Road, the last left turn before coming to I-40 intersection. When the road forks, keep right. Cove Creek is a steep, ten-mile, narrow, curving mountain road. There is a three-mile paved section leading up and over Cove Creek Gap, and then winding down the other side of the mountain. When you again reach pavement, turn left and enjoy your easy descent into the valley. The road can be treacherous after heavy rains or with snow.

ART LOEB TRAIL

Length: 12.3 miles Rating: Strenuous

The Art Loeb Trail, 30.1 miles long, is a national recreation trail and named after a local hiking enthusiast. The trail traverses beautiful, but rugged terrain, from some of the lowest, to some of the highest points on the Pisgah District. Most of the Art Loeb Trail is overlapped by the Mountains-to-the Sea Trail. It begins at the Davidson River and climbs steeply to Shut-in Ridge. Once up, don't expect that the hard part is over. This trail will take you up and down knobs, along ridges and down into several gaps.

Directions: Go 0.2 mile south of Pisgah District Ranger Station on U.S. Highway 276, and turn onto the road to Davidson River Campground. Park in the Art Loeb Trailhead parking lot. The other end of this section is at Gloucester Gap on FS Rd. 471, where overnight parking is not recommended.

GRAVEYARD FIELDS

Length: 3.2 miles Rating: Easy

This is a popular family hiking trail because of its beauty and ease. This is a moderate climb of almost a mile to the base of an impressive waterfall. A map at the parking area shows the Graveyard Fields trail system. The set of steps to the right of the map is the start of the trail. After crossing the bridge, the main trail goes left and upstream. A 0.25-mile trail to the right will take you to the bottom of the Lower Falls, which is a moderate descent. Rocks around waterfalls are very slippery. The main trail will take you through open, grassy areas, and past nice pools for wading on a hot summer day. Blueberries are abundant in the fall. After one mile, you will see the trail to the Upper Falls. The main trail crosses the Yellow stone Prong and returns to the parking lot.

Directions: This trail begins at the Graveyard Fields Overlook on the Blue Ridge Parkway.

BOOGERMAN TRAIL

Length: 4.2 miles Rating: Easy

This moderate, 4-mile hiking trail has an elevation gain of only 900 feet. It is well known for the variety of magnificent trees. The trailhead is on Caldwell Fork Trail. After leaving Caldwell Fork, the trail ascends a low ridge to a gap, slabs (runs across the mountain slope with only gradual elevation change) the mountainside with only two additional short climbs, reaches a side ridge, and descends back to Caldwell Fork. It is best to do this trail as a day hike from Cataloochee Campground, a 7.5-mile roundtrip.

Directions: Take exit 20 off I-40 (Cove

Creek) and travel west on NC 276 turn right on Cove Creek road. Stay on Cove Creek Rd. for 6 miles. This will take you 2 miles beyond park boundary. Turn left on Cataloochee Road, go 3.1 miles. Trail will be on the left.

BUCKEYE RIDGE TRAIL

Length: 5.4 miles Rating: Moderate

This hiking trail winds through grassy fields and wooded areas. It provides panoramic views of the countryside in some spots. Cold Springs Creek flows through dense woods and grassy fields on its way to the Pigeon River. The forest shows hints of its past history~farming, logging, narrow gauge railroads, settlements, and signs of recent forest management. The grassy ridges of Max Patch Mountain near the Tennessee state line crown the area. Trails combined with forest service roads to provide loop opportunities.

BLUERIDGE PARKWAY HIKES

Milepost 418.8: Graveyard Fields

A short downhill hike (partly paved) leads to one of three waterfalls. A popular hiking destination, Graveyard Fields morphs into a wild blueberry field calling people from afar due to its sweeping views and ripening patch in late summer and fall, so bring your buckets.

Milepost 420: Black Balsam Knob

This section of trails includes some of the most spectacular mountains and balds in the Southern Appalachians, including Black Balsam Knob, Sam Knob, and Tennent Mountain. These treeless mountaintops draw alpine appearance.

Milepost 422.4: Devil's Courthouse According to Cherokee folklore, the devil holds court in a cave on the mountain, where a walk to the bare rock summit is worth every step.

Milepost 431: Richland Balsam Overlook The highest point on the entire Parkway at 6,053 feet, the Richland Balsam overlook also offers a beautiful 1.5-mile self-guided loop trail.

Milepost 451.2: Waterrock Knob Waterrock Knob Visitor Center sits at nearly 6,000 feet and offers exhibits, book sales, restrooms and a 1.2 mile roundtrip trail leading to the summit of Waterrock Knob for an almost 360 degree view of the Smoky Mountains.

Maggie Shops

If you are in need of a little retail therapy, the shops in Maggie Valley are here to help.

Many of the shops are independent and locally owned, and shopkeepers make sure you feel at home. You won't find a shopping mall with the usual lineup of trendy stores here. What you will find are one-of-a-kind boutiques and specialty shops, art galleries, and plenty of places to recharge by sampling the perfect piece of fudge or relaxing on the porch with a tall glass of iced tea – sweet, of course. The shopping in Maggie Valley allows you to take in the mountain air and enjoy the views as you meander from shop to shop.

From art and antiques to pottery, crafts and keepsakes unique to the Smoky Mountains, you can find something for everyone. Maggie Valley is a year-round shopping destination with a pedestrian-friendly shopping district that makes getting around easy.

Maggie Mountaineer Crafts

Just be sure to stop by when you're in the area! You'll find many things that will help you remember you and your family's trip here for generations to come!

Maggie can Cook

You know a restaurant must be good when the parking lot is full.

You really know it's good when you find out that most of the cars parked there belong to locals. That's the story at most Maggie Valley restaurants, but authentic southern food isn't the only fare you can find in Maggie Valley. You have a choice of breakfast places on either end of the valley, Mexican, Italian and seafood restaurants. Most of the restaurants are casual dining, but you can also find upscale dining establishments for those special occasions. Kick back and enjoy some local entertainment from karaoke to the best appalachian pickin' bluegrass you can find anywhere.

LODGING

Maggie Valley offers a wide variety of places to stay, for a night, a week or longer. The valley floor offers hotels, motels, and inns from locally operated to well known national chains. Throughout the valley and up into the surrounding Great Smoky Mountains you'll find homes, cabins and villas for rent. A stay in Maggie Valley can recharge your spirit and give you a new perspective on the world.

Off the beaten path you'll find nature waiting to fill your senses with the sounds of rushing water, birds chirping, and the whisper of the wind through the trees. The valley's elevation (from 3200 feet at the floor to over 5000 feet on the higher peaks) offers four distinct seasons and a cool summer break from the normal high temps in the cities of the southeast. Normal daytime highs in the higher elevations rarely reach 80 degrees even in the dog days of summer.

For those who like to rough it (not so rough in an RV), Maggie Valley has plenty of campgrounds and RV resorts to choose from with easy access in and around the Valley.

Maggie is one Cool Chick

The temperature may cool off in the winter months in Maggie, but there is still plenty to do. Starting around Thanksgiving and wrapping up after the first week of March, Cataloochee's Ski Area season is in full swing. With award-winning snowmaking, all that's needed is cool nights and the slopes are ready to go. Visit the website to see an updated snow report, buy tickets online and see the ski area through webcams at cataloochee.com.

Starting around the first of December and running select days through the first of March, Tube World at the north end of the Valley offers snow tubing for people of all ages. No special skills required.

If the quieter side is more your thing, winter hikes offer views that are normally shrouded in leaves the rest of the year. You can see foot prints from all the animals that use the paths when snow is present.

Biking in The Smokies

Hard core BMX rider or just out for a family bike ride, the mountains of western North Carolina have it all. The two most popular rides are the pedestrian trail around Lake Junaluska which is perfect for the novice or family, and the Blue Ridge Parkway for the seasoned road rider. Some of the park trails allow bikes including Cade's Cove Auto Loop. Another hidden favorite is the Balsam Mountain Road off the Blue Ridge Parkway from the picnic area at Balsam Mountain - 22 miles to Round Bottom Road, it's 99% downhill so not much peddling is needed. Check ahead with the park service to make sure you're good to go. Whichever biking adventure you choose, just remember to take a moment to stop and soak in the breathtaking views and scenery that surround you.

Meet the Original Maggie

They named this now famous resort community for a pretty 14-year old mountain girl with long blond hair and deep blue eyes. To know her story and the real Maggie, you must read Maggie of Maggie Valley, NC, a book written by her daughter Patty Pylant Kosier.

It's the chronicle not only of Maggie Mae Setzer Pylant but mountain life when this was still an isolated settlement in the wilderness. Ten years after Maggie was born on December 21, 1890, her father, Jack Setzer started thinking that the community ought to have a post office. He wanted to establish a post office in his home because he was tired of hiring someone to ride 5 miles to the Plott post office to pick up mail for the valley. Jack Setzer wrote to the US postal department for permission to establish his home as a new post office that would serve the area. He was told to provide service that was needed by the settlements for the next six months, he kept careful records. One corner of Setzers room was a post office in which he built a wooden box to file the incoming letters and newspaper. At the end of six months, Jack submitted his records to the post office department and they accepted his application the postal service. The first three names that he submitted were rejected because they had already been used for other NC post offices. Jack then submitted the three names of his daughters Cora, Mettie and Maggie Mae plus the name Jonathan Creek, the creek that ran through the Setzer's home. Jack didn't tell his daughters that he submitted their names. On May 10, 1904, Jack received an official letter from the US Postmaster General Frank Hitchcock that the post office authorities had made their decision. The official name of the mountain settlement post office was to be Maggie, NC. Maggie was embarrassed when she was told the news. She burst into tears and ran up the mountain to the old log cabin where she had been born. At the age of 17, Maggie became the bride of Ira Pylant of Nashville, TN. They moved to Texas, but she came back to her beloved valley several times before her death in 1979 at the age of 88.
